Report of the Committee.

THE Committee feel that they have reached an important period in the history of the education of the blind in this country. For many years, such education depended solely upon charitable effort. More recently the blind have come within the scope of the public elementary schools; but, owing to the special methods necessary for their efficient education and training, much more was still required. Happily, there has been a continuous and most satisfactory advance both in the character of the education provided and in the extent to which it reaches the young blind. has been largely due to an increased and enlightened interest in the subject on the part of the charitable public, and to the support afforded by private endowments, conspicuous among which is the Gardner Trust. has been of the highest possible value in training many blind and otherwise helpless young persons to become useful citizens.

But it must be remembered that a large proportion of the charitable endowments available for the blind are necessarily required for, and absorbed in, assisting by pensions, or otherwise, the large class who lose their sight so late in life as to be incapable of acquiring efficiency in a new trade or profession.

Hitherto, the report of the Royal Commission on the education of the blind, presented in 1889, has not been used as a basis for legislation. But the friends of the blind will note with satisfaction, that in answer to an important deputation that waited on the Vice-president of the council, on March 2nd, 1893, an assurance was given that legislation would be proposed by the Government, on the basis of that report, at an early date. The Committee look forward with great hopefulness to the fulfilment of that pledge.

Parliament has lately devoted large sums to technical education, and placed their administration under the County Councils. It is difficult to conceive on what ground the blind can be excluded from a fair share of the benefit in those funds. The Committee confidently reckon that this college must ultimately be recognized as entitled to share in the provision made by the State, to promote the technical education of the people. We have conclusively shown, that by a true technical training, combined with good general education, our pupils can become, in a large percentage of cases, self-supporting, self-reliant citizens. As we have often stated, fully 80 per cent. of those who go through a complete training at the College become self-supporting. In 1886, the past pupils of the College earned between nine and ten thousand pounds. We are now able to say that there are former pupils of the College engaged in various useful and honourable positions, whose aggregate earnings last year exceeded £18,000.

The essence of our system consists in inspiring our students with confidence that, by the improvement of their physical condition, by a good system of technical education, and the acquirement of habits of good work, they will leave the College as self-reliant citizens, capable of winning their own support in the world, and thus overcoming the serious infirmity of bliudness.

This gratifying success in the past has been attained with our limited resources, and without any aid whatever from either the State or County Councils. If the College receives a share of the grants devoted by the State for elementary education, and also for improving the industrial condition of the people, as well as continued support from their friends, the Committee will be able to extend the benefits of the College by admitting larger numbers, and by introducing still more efficient means for technical instruction.

It is important that the friends of the College and the public, should clearly apprehend that, in the great majority of cases, our pupils are drawn from the poorer classes, who are totally unable to obtain the necessary education without large help from public or charitable sources. Out of the present number of pupils the parents of only seventeen, are able to pay the cost of their children's education. So highly is the College education valued, that the Principal, at the present time, has a large number of urgent cases which cannot be received for want of funds.

As the Report of the Principal shows, owing largely to the generous support given by Mrs. Armitage and Mr. W. J. Armitage, the Committee have been able to purchase and lay out the new property, "Windermere," lately added to the College grounds. In doing this, they have kept in mind the necessity of preparing the institution for a wider sphere of educational usefulness, and they feel sure that their supporters will fully endorse their action in that respect, and will feel it a duty as well as a pleasure thus to develop the usefulness of the College. The grounds, with the recent addition, would be sufficient for a greatly increased number of pupils. Such au increase would, however, necessitate some additions to the College buildings, and better arrangements for classification. And the only real hindrance to such a beneficent development of the work is the financial question.

The necessary alterations and improvements at "Windermere," and a thorough revision of the drainage and sanitary arrangements of the older College buildings, found urgently necessary in order to put them into a condition for resisting the serious epidemics which have already reached this country, or threatened to do so, have involved a considerable outlay during the past year; and this expense, combined with other circumstances at this time affecting the incomes of many charities, have compelled the Committee to ask an advance from their bankers. The present floating indebtedness is nearly £2,800. Besides this, the Committee may be pardoned for reminding their friends once more of their heavy mortgage debt of £12,000, costing them nearly £500 a year for interest. And, on the other hand, our list of annual subscriptions, amounting to little more than £600, is far too small for the support of an institution of the importance of the Royal Normal College, requiring an annual ordinary expenditure of upwards of £10,000 a year. Will not every friend of the College make it his duty to add to the list?

In response to the repeated applications of various Parents, the Committee have now made special arrangements for Private Pupils of both sexes. The Principal will furnish full information to all who may desire it.

During the year under review, the Committee have lost the services of their colleague, Major-General Hugh Mackenzie, through continued ill-health; and since the close of the year sudden death has deprived them of the valued help of Mr. George T. Rose, one of the earliest and kindest friends. Mr. T. Marchant Williams has intimated his desire to retire from the Executive Committee, owing to the pressure of other engagements.

The Annual Meeting and Opening of the Armitage Memorials was held at the College on July 21st, 1892.

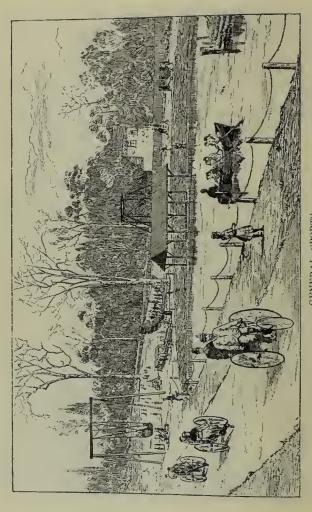

Garden Parties were given on Saturday afternoons in May, June, and July, each afternoon being under special patronage: May 7th, the Goldsmiths' Institute Ramblers' Club; May 14th, the Very Rev. the Dean of St. Paul's; May 21st, the Teachers' Guild; June 11th, George Williams, Esq.; June 15th, the Clergy and Churchwardens of St. Paul's Church, Anerley; June 18th, the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress; June 25th, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Armitage; July 2nd, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Western;

July 9th, Sir Frederick Young, K.C.M.G. (to Members of the Colonial Institute); and July 16th, the Right Hon. the Earl of Meath (to Members of the British College of Physical Education).

Once more the Committee record their obligations to our corps of Professors, Teachers, and Officers for their continued zeal and fidelity - their interest does not oease with the performance of their regular duties, they promote the work of the College and the welfare of the old pupils on all possible occasions; to our Honorary Oculists and Aurist, J. Whitaker Hulke, Esq., E. Nettleship, Esq., and W. Laidlaw Purves, Esq., for valuable services; to Dr. Henry Hetley, for his constant and unremitting care of every case of illness in the College; to Messrs. Frits and Anton Hartvigson for their valuable pianoforte recitals; to Henry C. Banister. Esq., the Rev. John Presland, and Edward Manson, Esq., for instructive courses of lectures; also to all the ladies and gentlemen who have given miscellaneous lectures, recitations, and recitals to the pupils; to Mrs. Wm. Auchincloss Arrol, for an annual teaching prize; to Miss Mudge, for additions to the library of embossed books; to the British and Foreign Blind Association, for liberal grants of embossed books; to the British and Foreign Bible Society, for a grant of books; to A. J. Hipkins, Esq., for his valuable services in conducting the examination of the Technical Department. and for tuning prizes; to N. Vert, Esq., and D. Mayer, Esq., for many tickets to concerts in St. James's and Prince's Halls; to Messrs. John Broadwood and Sons, for continued liberality and practical assistance of great value to our work; to Messrs. Chappell and Co., for a special piano for the gymnasium; to Messrs. Rylands and Co., and Messrs. Thos. Tapling and Co., for the assistance they have liberally continued to render; and to John M. Cook, Esq., for an outing at Margate for the entire establishment. The best thanks of the Committee are also offered to the Guion and Cunard Steamship Companies; to Messrs. Thos. Cook and Son, and to the following Companies and other Railways with which they are connected—the London, Chatham, and Dover, the London, Brighton, and South Coast, the North Western, the Midland, the Great Northern, the Great Western, and the Scottish Railways, not only for substantial favours conferred, but for the kindness and attention of their officials to our pupils; and to the Cottage Hospital, Upper Norwood, and London Fever Hospital, for great kindness and attention to our pupils.

CYCLE PARTY.

Principal's Report.

For the year 1892, the number of permanent pupils was 148, but our practice of taking young blind persons temporarily, for special purposes, caused the attendance to vary from 150 to 160.

During the year thirteen situations have been obtained for pupils who were leaving the College. Twenty-four of our female pupils are now engaged in teaching the blind in various parts of the country, and appointments have been secured for two others in the coming summer. By good work, and business-like habits, our tuners are steadily gaining the confidence of pianoforte manufacturers and dealers, and it is gradually becoming easier to obtain employment for our certificated pupils.

The daily work of the College has been prosecuted with more than usual vigour. The efforts of our Professors and teachers are not limited to the routine instruction of the class-room; much extra time is given, especially to the backward and unpromising pupils; their failings are earefully considered, and, by voluntary assistance, they are helped over many of their difficulties. Our teachers and officers realize that the knowledge acquired by our students is of very little practical use, without careful attention to details, business-like habits, and manly character. wish to express my thanks for their zeal, devotion and faithfulness, to which, under God's blessing, we owe the success that has crowned the year's work.

Miss Eliza Proctor, who has been our faithful and devoted matron for twenty years, was obliged to resign on account of failing health; sho was beloved by all, both teachers and pupils, and carries with her the grateful appreciation, not only of the present, but all the past pupils.

From the outset, the work of the College has been based upon the principle that the Blind, to succeed in any profession or business, must have au education fully equal to that eujoyed by the seeing, who follow the same avocations in life. We have Professors and teachers of ability, energy, and euthusiasm, men of position and influence, whose endorsement is a powerful factor in overcoming tho prejudice that exists against the employment of the Blind. As the College has only a small subscription-list, and no endowment, these great educational advantages could not have been given to so many of the destitute Blind without the generous aid of the Gardner Trust. The system of Scholarships established by the Committee of the Garduer Trust* in connection with the Royal Normal College is working a revolution in the education and training of the poor Blind, which must eventually benefit the whole class. Numbers of Gardner Scholars who have completed their training, are now successfully established in business in different parts of the United Kingdom, the Colonies, and the United States. We know that the aggregate carnings of the Gardner Scholars in 1892 was upwards of £7,000 We cannot estimate the good resulting from the Gardner Scholarships by any amount of money, but this practical test clearly shows how to help the Blind; and we trust that those who have the power of establishing Scholarships, will recognise the claims of the Blind to a share of the money bestowed upon the technical and musical education of the seeing.

The advantages the College affords for training the Blind, physically, mentally, and musically, have brought an increasing number of applications from parents who can afford to pay for their children's education. The purchase of "Windermere," besides making an important addition to our grounds, and giving greater facilities for healthful exercise, has enabled us to open two houses for private pupils, one for girls and one for boys.

In the honse of "Windermere" there was a large well-lighted billiard-room which has been converted into a Technical Shop. Hitherto, we have not had proper accommodation for the Elementary Technical Department, but appreciating the paramount importance of technical training for the Blind, at great inconvenience, we gave up

Private Pupils.

Technical Training the girls' sehool-rooms for the purpose. This large room at "Windermere" has enabled us to restore the school-rooms to their original use. cannot too strongly urge the importance of technical instruction for the Blind. It is indispensable, not only for those blind persons who are being trained for mechanical pursuits, but also for the young Blind who are preparing for the musical profession, or other business. The skilful uso of tools develops that dexterity of hand and fingers which is so essential for pianists and organists, as well as for mechanics. introduced a course of Technical training in 1881. I visited many Blind Schools for the purpose of gaining information on this subject, but being disappointed in my search, I examined some of the best Technical Schools for the seeing, both in Europe and America. Our present Technical Department owes its origin to information gained at various Technical Schools for the seeing, especially the one at Worcester, Massachusetts. I am glad to learn from the Report of the American Convention of Instructors of the Blind, that the subject is now attracting much attention in the United States. Progressive Blind Schools cannot afford to do without suitable arrangements for elementary technical training.

JUNIOR TECHNICAL SHOP.

By invitation of the Committee of the Incorporated Society of Musicians, I read a paper on the Musical Education of the Blind at its Annual Meeting, held in London early in January.

Incorporated Society of Musicians. The members of the Society spent the afternoon of January 5th at the College. I take the following account from the Monthly Journal of the Society:—

VISIT TO THE ROYAL NORMAL COLLEGE FOR THE BLIND.

In the afternoon a special train was arranged to leave Kiug's Cross Station for Norwood, to visit the Royal Normal College for the Blind. members and others interested in Dr. Campbell's great work availed themselves of the opportunity. Arriving in the grounds of the College about three o'clock, the party walked through them, and watched the blind students skating on the ice, swinging, eycling, girls roller-skating, and boys and men practising in the gymuasiums. They were then conducted to the hall, where the members of the choir were assembled, and it was pleasant to sec the gennine happiness which was evident on the countenances of the singers, bearing ont the practical truth of the motto which was suspended above their heads-" Musica Lux in tenebris." music seemed to be "light in darkness" indeed. On the way to the hall, we ought to have said, the visitors passed through a number of the class-rooms, where the pupils were engaged at their lessons. These included Kindergarten. modelling, arithmetic, Freuch, Euclid, physics, &c. All appeared to be taking the keenest possible interest in their work, and quite undisturbed by the presence of strangers-a positive advantage over seeing children. When all were seated in the Concert Hall, Mr. Cummings, at the request of Dr. Campbell, took the chair, observing that although, perhaps, the weather had made his hearers come to the College not in the very best of tempers, yet he was sure all would be very much pleased with what they would see during their visit. He was sure both he and they were indebted to Dr. Campbell for his kindness in inviting them to spend an hour or two at such an interesting educational institution.

Dr. CAMPBELL, after giving the Society a hearty we'come, asked Mrs. Campbell to read his paper on the Musical Education of the Blind.*

Dr. Campbell supplemented his paper by giving some practical illustrations of the method of instruction in music adopted at the College. A chant, which had been written for the occasion, was dictated by the Doctor, and immediately taken down in Braille by the Choir, who at once sang it in four parts-first to the syllables, then to the Gloria Patri, and finally to the 150th Psalm-quite as correctly, and with as much facility as a good seeing choir. It should be remarked that the "Cathedral Psalter" has been published in Braille, so that the singers took their books and chanted from them in quite the ordinary manner. Dr. Campbell went on to explain his method of teaching Staff Notation, and gave an account of the set of cards on which the staff is built, line by line, by which simple process it can be learnt and remembered by any child of ordinary capacity without the least difficulty. He also stated that his method, with appropriate exercises and lessons, is being published under the title of "Analytical Pianoforte Primer," by Novello & Co. Miss Emily Lucas then played the first movement of Guilmant's Sonata in D minor for the organ. Next, the choir sang most pleasingly, Wilbye's Madrigal, "Sweet 'Honeysucking Bees," and a part song, "Tears, idle tears," by Mr. W. H. Cummings. The latter being encored, one of the same composer's Shakespeare songs, "On a day, alack the day," was submitted, which confirmed the good opinion every one had already formed, both of the previous piece and i's rendering. Finally, Miss Connie Davis played in admirable style, Mendelssohn's "Capriccio in B," Mr. A. Hollins adding an arrangement of the orchestral accompaniments on a second piano. Dr. Hiles, of Manchester, then presented certificates to several students who had completed their course of training. Tea was served at the conclusion of the meeting, in several rooms some little distance away from the Hall, on the way to which the visitors passed through the Technical Shop, where boys and girls were busily engaged in Anglo-American Slojd.

Re-union of former pupils.

It is a fundamental principle of the College to keep in touch with its former pupils; we are glad to have them visit us at all times, and keep rooms in readiness for them, either in the College or Principal's house. Those who are teaching in other Blind Schools often find it advantageous to spend their holidays with us. We frequently have re-unions, when the old pupils come in large numbers and spend several days at the College. These meetings enable them to exchange experiences with each other, and give us an opportunity of helping them. The last re-union was held on July 19th, 20th, 21st, and 22nd, 1892, when we had an orchestral Concert at the Crystal Palace, and the Annual Meeting at the College. The Palace programme included several compositions by past and present pupils; among them, a complete symphony in four movements by Mr. Harry Turner. Mr. Manns, though much occupied, had two special rehearsals, and deserves our warmest gratitude for the care and attention he gave, in order to secure an effective performance of this manuscript work.

Aunual Meeting.

The following account of the Annual Meeting is taken from The Times, Daily News, Standard, Telegraph, and Leeds Mercury:—

A large number of ladies and gentlemen visited the Royal Normal College and Academy of Music for the Blind, Upper Norwood, yesterday, to take part in the triple eeremony of the Annual Meeting, the Re-union of former pupils, and the Opening of the Armitage Memorials. These Memorials were a Library, located in Windermere House, and a Turret Clock and Chimes.

Windermere, recently purchased, contains four and a half acres, and with the existing nine acres of the College grounds, forms one of the most picturesque properties Sonth of the Thames. It includes play-grounds admirably arranged, a cycle track, a barre a pied alley, a plot for hammer throwing and shot pitching, numerous walks, a lakelet where the pupils learn to row, beautiful flower beds, and lovely grass slopes, shaded by fine trees. Rarely in so small an area is there to be found such a combination of the useful and practical, side by side with the beautiful. No corner or coign of vantage is lost, that can conduce to the recreative welfare of the students.

The bells, five in number, were cast by Messis. Gillett and Johnston, of Croydon, and, together with the clock, were subscribed for by the pupils, professors, executive committee, and others. The clock chimes the Westminster quarters, and strikes the bours. On the hour bell are embossed the words:—"In memory of Thomas Rhodes Armitage, Esq., M.D., faithful friend and wise benefactor of the Blind, whose loving service turned darkness into light."

Previous to the meeting the guests had an opportunity of witnessing in the garden, classes at work in reading (from books embossed in the Braille type), writing, French, geography, physics, arithmetic and geometry.

The Pianoforte Tuning School excited much interest (piano tuning offers one of the best employments for the Blind). Piano construction was illustrated by an upright piano model, specially made for the College by Messrs. John Broadwood & Sons. There were also illustrations of piano stringing, repairing, and tuning.

Then the visitors passed through the Armitage Gymnasinm, one of the best fitted up gymnasia in Great Britain, there being considerably over forty entirely different pieces of apparatus. Here boys and young men were exercising on Sargent's Developing apparatus, Swedish ladders, German vaulting horses, and English parallel bars, with a grace and style that compares favourably with our best sighted gymnasts. Space will not allow us to enumerate the various pieces of apparatus by which the chest girth can be increased, the arms made stronger, the body more flexible, and the legs more supple. Suffice it to say, no means are left unused to overcome the loss of vitality from which the Blind as a class suffer, and endue them with the strength and endurance to manfully face the world and its difficulties.

In the entrance Hall of the College little ones were found at Kindergarten and modelling, cards were being seen, baskets woven, hook-markers braided, paper folded, while more experienced fingers were d ftly modelling in clay, geometrical forms, flowers, vegetables, and animals.

Then the Technical Workshop was inspected. The shop consists of twenty work benches, with racks for tools, &c., where ten boys and ten girls were busily engaged in planing, hammering, and fitting together book racks, key and wardrobe racks, wall brackets, knife boxes, foot-stools, tables, children's carts, towel-rollers, and fern baskets, in a most workmanlike manner. The object of this department is to give the students the quick and ready uso of their hands and fingers.

After the inspection, the visitors assembled in the large hall, where a memorial service was conducted by the Rev. J. W. Moeran, of St. Paul's Church, Upper Norwood.

Opening of the Armitage Memorials. At the conclusion of the service, the Memorial Meeting was held on the Skating Rink. The President of the College, His Grace the Duke of Westminster, took the chair. In the course of his remarks, he stated that the property of Windermere, consisting of four-and-a-half acres and a large house, had been purchased and added to the College. The earnings of past pupils during 1891 amounted to £18,000. The Duke then paid a warm tribute to the memory of the late Dr. Armitage, than whom the blind of England never had a greater benefactor. When partial blindness overtook him, he gave up the practice of medicine and devoted the remainder of his life and fortune to the relief of the blind, not only of this country, but of all parts of the world. One of his great achievements was the impetus which he gave to reading and writing among the blind; he adapted, and introduced the French Braille system, and invented a simple method of interlining and stereotyping.

Bishop Phillips Brooks, in the course of his remarks said-It has never been my privilege to know him in whose memory we are met here to-day, and yet it is not difficult to catch the spirit of the times; it is not hard to feel how this association generally represents the character of one man, and has stood forth in the nature of that man before the world. Every instinct, every interest that is in the heart of man, finds its full expression when it fixes itself in a representative man; and therefore all the deep sympathy which those who have the use of their sight feel towards the blind; all the deep pity which comes at the thought of so much depression and hardship in which they continually live; all the noble devotion to the assistance of the blind, in order that they might have the great world open to them so far as it is possible, has evidently embodied itself in this one man whom we are commemorating, and to whom this memorial is dedicated. One may say, that here the true memorial is the work which has been accomplished on behalf of the blind. The life of a man who has lived as this man has lived is a monnmental life. It is not the simple fact of where he was born, or what he has done; it is not the simple associations of his life: but the way in which he has identified himself with one of those great emotions of the human soul, whose hlessings are enduring for ever and ever. So long as people are born into the world deprived of one of the privileges of mankind-of sight-so long as people, by any accident or disease, pass into that condition of misfortune, the memory of such a man as this will be always eared for. Surely there is something very profoundly interesting in the way in which work for the blind has brought men into a full understanding of the relation in which we stand. What is the relation in which we stand towards those who need onr special help? Is that help a thing which we can withhold if we please? Is it a work of supercrogation, or something about which we can feel a generous pity? Or is it something we owe to our fellow-men, something which they have a right to demand from us, and which we are called upon to do? The answer easily comes to our lips when we consider the position in which we are placed, and we say, " Certainly, it is wonderful how all the difficulties and economical problems of the world are being, one and another, settled by the great influence of human life, and the love of human character." We must never forget that the blind are always rendering to as something when we are trying to do something for them; they are opening the depths of our human lives. I look into the faces of these students, and it seems to me that I understand more of the mystery of this humanity in which I live. They are showing it to me, not by the senses, but by the inner life which lies behind all the senses. They show how there is one deep basis on which all their senses meet, so that if this channel or that avenue be stopped, their soul may find its way hy the rich message which God has given to man into the deeper life which lies beyond. The revelation of the richness, and the centralness, and the mystery of our human life which comes to those who are deprived of the use of any of their senses, is one of the richest teachings which God has given to the world. I know a little girl in my own land who is a perpetual delight and wonderment to me, a little girl of eleven, who has brought to me and to all those who have seen her, that which I think will be precious to them all as long as they live. That little child is deaf and dumb and blind, shut out, as it seems, from every association with the outer world; and yet the dreams of beanty that come into her soul, the words of beauty that she has spoken to listening ears that could only be reached through the strange manipulation of those deft and agile hands, is a revelation to us all that there is no one so shut out that something of the human life does not find its way through; and therefore we render our gratitude to the blind for the special revelations which they are able to bring to our human nature of all the richness of this world, and of the abundance of the gracious God. I thank you for the privilege of being here this afternoon, and of looking into your faces, but still more of looking into those faces yonder, and bidding them believe, as I know they already believe, in the tokens you have given them, in the pity and justice with which you will try to help their lot, so that they shall be inspired in their turn to do for others in ways which God will snrely open for them, some mission, some errand, some work of helpfulness, to help our brethren, to help that which is our larger self—the great humanity in which we live—it is the only thing worth living for on earth. (Loud cheers.)

Then one of the junior boys, Willie Sharp, recited a sonnet to the memory of Dr. Armitage, composed by J. B. Greenwood:

A noble life! a life of deeds not words,
Stamped with God's image, and with love for men, Bearing His superscription! Happiest when
In service spent that with His will accords.
The roll-call of the blind no name affords
More worthy the recording angel's pen;
No life more honoured falls within his ken;
No loss could wake more sympathetic chords,
One of God's noblemen, in very deed!
Large-hearted, generons, open-handed, free;
A princely giver! in full sympathy
With Christ-like work, without respect of creed.
O, "good and faithful servant!" thon hast won
The prize of thy true service—God's "Well done."

Lord Playfair, in moving a vote of thanks to the Duke of Westminster for presiding, said—There are many persons to whom thanks are due, but in giving your thanks to the Duke of Westminster, who has taken such a deep interest in this College since its foundation, you will also be giving thanks to Mrs. Armitage, Mr. W. J. Armitage, and other benefactors of the College who have aided us so much during the past year. The boys and girls of this institution are no longer blind, for they see with the eyes of their instructors, and they hear with their own ears that beantiful music through which they intend to make their independent living. Almost all these children acquire independence through the beautiful art of music, and as the Duke told you, the earnings of our pupils last year, for a single year, were £18,000; and this great benefit of making them self-dependent is on account of the method of instruction followed here, of promoting the physical education as well as the mental education, because the two, acting harmonionsly together, produce the splendid results which we have found in this institution. I ask you to return thanks to the Duke of Westminster, not only for presiding here, but for the constant attention and kindness which he has given to our institution.

The vote was unanimously accorded, and the Chairman briefly replied.

Lady Mary Grosvenor, the Duke's little daughter, tonched an electric button and set the bells ringing in full rich tones. Lady Mary was then presented by the children of Mr. Johnston with a small bell made of the same metal as the chimes, suitably inscribed, and with a basket of flowers by a little blind girl from Sonth Africa.

On behalf of the pupils, the Duke presented a handsome clock to Miss Proctor, who is resigning her post as matron after twenty years' service. A similar presentation was made to Mr. August Manns, musical director of the Crystal Palace, for his kindness to the College.

The bells of the Memorial Clock now regulate the work of the entire establishment; it enables the musical pupils to systematize their practice, the quarter-bells fixing the time for exercises, scales, studies, &c.

Memorial Library, The Armitage Memorial Library contains works by Milton, Shakespeare, Addison, Carlyle, Emerson, Ruskin, Lamb, Macaulay, Prescott, Green, Kingsley, Stanley, Farrar, Robertson,

Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Royal Normal College, Secretary of the British and Foreign Blind Association, and Chairman of the Committee of the Indigent Blind Visiting Society. Wordsworth, Tennyson, Gray, Browning, Longfellow, Byron, Scott, Dickens, Thackeray, Lytton, Miss Muloch, Geo. Eliot, and many others. It already numbers 3,000 volumes, and we hope to see the number increased ten-fold. I have faith to believe the noble philanthropists, who are so liberally providing libraries for the seeing, will not forget our blind boys and girls. We need a special building for our library, and a fund for annually increasing the number of our embossed boeks.

To show the importance of good reading for the Blind, I quote the following from a paper read before the American Convention of Instructors of the Blind, by one of our former teachers, Mr. E. E. Allen, now Principal of the Pennsylvania State School, Philadelphia:—

Among the blind pupils with whom I have come in contact in our American schools, I have noticed a disposition to gossip about institution affairs and people, to find fault with the food, the instruction, and the general management, to criticise freely, and finally to leave school with little appreciation of what their teachers have laboured to do for them. Home influences and inheritances may be subordinate causes of this state of affairs, but I believe the chief cause lies in the facts: first, that we fail to provide our pupils with wholesome and sufficient occupation for their leisure hours; and second, that we do not inspire high aims and aspirations or afford them the adequate opportunities for the formation of that personal character which is absolutely necessary to the successful career of the individual who is blind. And I believe that the remedy for these evils is a large, well-assorted working library, which shall afford the boys and girls those most excellent companions, books.

Voluntary Reading.

The advantage of reading has long been an established fact in the educational world. But how shall we get our pupils to read? We cannot expect them to read if they have no books, and they certainly will not read unless they have a variety from which to choose. The books already printed in this country are good so far as they go, but there are not enough of them, and we cannot afford to wait for the books we want to be printed-and many desirable books never would be printed. In our school where we have all the books in New York Point which have been printed at Lonisville (I have counted sixty-two different volumes, large and small, that are not too technical to be read voluntarily) the whole number read by the boys during the past year, ontside of class, was eighty-seven (less than a book each) and the whole number of different books read was thirty.

With the above, let me contrast the statistics I brought with me from a school in London. I am nnable to tell exactly the number of works in the library, but I know that, compared with other embossed libraries, it was large when I went there, and that during my three years' librarianship I received for the boys' library alone three hundred and ninety-six different Braille books and pamphlets. The boys always helped me open the cases and earry the new books to the library. On the way they read the titles, and at the next delivery the books went like hot cakes. According to my catalogue, made August, 1887, the boys' reading library contained four hundred and fifty-one different books or volumes.

During the school year, 1886-87, there were thirty-four regular deliveries of books. The whole number taken out during this time was seven hundred and thirty-five, or an average of 21.6 at each delivery. During the following year there were thirty-six deliveries, the whole number taken out being one thousand and four, or an average of 27.8 at each delivery. To show the eapacity of these boys for reading, I quote from my record-of books taken from the library during the Easter recess of 1888. The number is uinety-cight; and these books, having been irregularly given out, are not included in the statistics quoted above. Ninety-eight is eleven more than our Philadelphia hoys read

The voluntary reading at Norwood was at times so overdone that the hoys had literally to be driven out of doors. I have driven them ont many a time myself. But together with the system of enforced physical exercise, this much reading worked magnificently. The younger pupils there were more advanced for their age than the pupils I have taught either in Boston or Philadelphia. The teaching itself was easy and satisfactory. Their reading made the pupils natural and companionable. They became good readers as a matter of course. Indeed, the average of them read better, i.e., with more intelligence than any others to whom I have listened since. Time did not hang heavy on their hands, and they did not come to me as the boys have often done in my own school, asking for something to do: but they came asking for something to read. Their reading furnished them food for thought at all timeseven for conversation at the table. We read very little aloud, it was unnecessary. Through their reading the music pupils became better interpreters of their art. We, in Philadelphia, have a good many fine musical executants; -but not all the teachers in the world would be able to make emotional and soulful players of those whose softer natures have not been often appealed to by personal experience and by the esthetical and culture-hringing study of poetry and other literature.

Ladies and gentlemen, we are behind England in all this matter. The Norwood pupils heeame great readers because they had the opportunity. To increase the practice of voluntary reading in our American schools, we must provide a library not of volumes but of different books. The existence of a real library I helieve is sufficient in itself to bring about much reading.

Since roading Mr. Allen's paper, I have carefully noted the number of books taken from the library, and find it averages from 60 to 80 volumes per week. This, however, does not show the number of volumes which are actually read, as the pupils oxchauge books with each other. I ascertained that 138 volumes were read last week, and during 1892 the pupils read more than 5,000 volumes, not including the Scriptures, or books of history and literature used in schoolclasses.

As no Parliamontary action had been taken on the Report of the Royal Commission on the Education and Training of the Blind and Deaf, I sent out a circular letter to all the Institutions for the Blind and Deaf proposing a united depntation to the Educational Department. Mr. Besant, head master of the School for the Deaf, Old Trafford, Manchester, kindly undertook to make all arrangements for the representatives of the Deaf. The United Deputation, introduced by His Grace the Duke of Westminster, was received by Mr. Acland, Vice-president of the Council, at 12 o'clock, Thursday, March 2nd. Iu introducing the Deputation, His Grace presented the following memorandum, which had been carefully discussed and accepted by the members of the Deputation-Deputation to the Vice-President of the Council on Education.

The recommendations of the Royal Commission on Memorandum the Education and Training of the Blind and Deaf have not, as yet, been earried out, and we now appeal to the Government to pass a measure providing for the elementary education of Blind and Deaf children, and for that special and extended course of instruction and technical training, which is necessary to make these classes useful and self-sustaining citizens.

The following are the chief points of the required legislation:-

1. That the provisions of the Education Acts should be put in force for the Blind and Deaf, that powers should be conferred upon School Authorities to enforce the compulsory attendance of these children at a school or institution, and that the age of compulsion be extended to sixteen.

- 2. That powers shall be given to the School Authorities to contribute to the funds of, to build, enlarge, and maintain institutions and schools, and that in doing so consideration shall be had to the accommodation available in the existing schools or institutions.
- 3. That respect shall be had to the religious persuasion of the parents.
- 4. That arrangements be made, subject to regulation by the Education Department, for the boarding out of children where desirable.
- 5. That a Parliamentary grant of a character suited to the special needs of this education be given, subject to the institutions and schools receiving aid being under inspection by specialists appointed by the Education Department for the Blind, and by Government Inspectors assisted by specialists, for the Deaf.
- 6. That in ease of any Blind children attending School Board classes, provision should be made for transferring them, when they are ten or twelve years of age, to Special Schools, where they can receive physical, technical, and general education, combined with mechanical or musical training, in order to prepare them for remunerative employment. This course of special instruction requires, according to circumstances, from four to eight years.
- 7. That in the ease of young persons who mry become Blind or Deaf when they are too old to attend elementary Schools, but not too late to be prepared for self-maintenance by a special course of instruction, the State should come to the aid of private effort, by providing special instruction and technical training for all young Blind and Deaf persons under twenty-one years of age, and that the period allowed for instruction should be clastic, say from four to eight years, according to the judgment of a properly constituted authority.

- 8. That industrial and technical training shall form a part of the education of every Blind and Deaf child. In the case of the Deaf, it shall mean teaching the elements of the use of tools and working processes suitable to one who is not an apprentice to the trade.
- 9. That Training Colleges for Teachers of the Deaf, approved by the Education Department, are of prime importance.
- 10. That the case of the Adult Blind ealls for Government aid. A large proportion of Blind persons become blind between the ages of 21 and 50, from accidents and other causes. As a rule they are most anxious to learn some trade suited to their new conditions, and find occupation. Without occupation, life becomes a burden, and often they and their families drift into panperism. It is cheaper for the State to give the necessary technical training, than to allow these unfortunate persons to become paupers.

The claims of Blind and Deaf Classes were urged by the Duko of Fife, Mrs. Fawcett, Lord Playfair, Mr. Ackers, Mr. George Dixon, M.P., and Mr. Howard.

Mr. Aeland, in reply, said he was very much indebted to the deputation for coming, and he hoped that their attendance would give a stimulus to that which they ("The Times.") desired-namely, that effective legislation should be passed. The example of foreign countries and of the colonies showed us that we were far behind in this matter, and it would really be discreditable to this country if we could not agree on effective legislation. Bills had been introduced, and the subject had not been treated, and should not be treated in any sense whatever as a party matter. The whole question had been fully investigated, and everybody admitted that it was ripe for legislation. It was true that Bills had been introduced into the Upper Honse and failed in the Lower House, and he could only say that they should try the inverse method, and he should do his very best in the Lower Honse. He knew there were noble lords

Mr. Aclaud's reply to the

who were perfectly ready to give a helping hand in the Upper House. They must try it anyhow, and he was perfectly convinced of this-if they could only manage by a certain amount of give and take as to disputed matters, to come to some reasonable agreement, all members of the Honse of Commons would equally join in helping through such a Bill with the greatest possible rapidity. No doubt there might he some arguments for having two Bills. That question would receive the very eareful consideration of the Government. There were points, no doubt, at which the two demands considerably differed. But however that might be, the essential principles as to State aid and the condition of State aid remained the same. What, he took it, they all felt was this-that public opinion needed to be educated hy seeing that the State could and would assist the best method of treating the afflicted classes, whether blind or deaf and dumh. The public should no longer. when the affliction arose, think of indigence, poverty, and pauper relief. He had the highest regard for all that had been done by boards of guardians. boards of guardians had spent their very hest efforts and had not been grudging in their expenditure of rates in giving help to the blind and deaf, but, if they possibly could, they ought to teach the parents and relatives and all concerned not to think of the word pauperism in connection with these afflicted classes. They felt especially with reference to the children, that they should be kept away from the Poor Law altogether. Just as he said in the case of the children in Poor Law schools, he would like to see all of them who could possibly he brought there in the ordinary schools instead of the Poor Law schools, so especially he said of the blind and deaf, let them keep them altogether away from schools where there was any kind of suspicion of the word pauperism. He quite admitted that when they gave State aid in another direction it might be to some extent on the same principle of charitable belp from the State. But what they wished to do was to give these children the same kind of chance that the ordinary unafflicted children got in their ordinary schools, and in order to do that and to put them in the same position they must spend more money and extend, if they could, the period of education. He should not serve any good purpose by going into minute details, but he might say that former Bills had treated some of them very fully. There were other points, however, such as the compulsory extension of age, which were of considerable difficulty; and such matters as the need of technical instruction and manual training, inspection by specialists, and training colleges would receive the consideration of the Government. As to the adult Blind, he could not help thinking that the County Councils, which now had large funds for technical training, might very fairly be called npon to consider whether those very few persons, numerically, among the adult persons, whether blind or deaf or dumb, did not demand their consideration under technical training just as much as the other adult members; and if it would be of any service he should be prepared to send round a circular to all the County Councils calling their attention to this particular point, for if they could induce County Councils, or the County Councils Association, for instance, to bear this in mind when distributing this technical money, a very small sum given for this purpose from each council might, when brought together, form a very useful fund, especially in assisting those adults who become afflicted in later life. There were, no doubt, some difficult points-namely, the questions of management and religious instruction; but he sincerely hoped that by applying a little common sense to these matters they would be able to get over the difficulties. He might specially nrge this-that when they introduced a Bill, as they would introduce one, those who were rightly interested in their special side of the question and their special institutions would bear in mind that the best thing, in the first instance, was to introduce a Bill on the simplest and broadest lines possible, and that at a later stage, when once the principle was laid down, they could introduce amending Bills, giving the further development that might be required. There were matters of the use of endowments which were already in existence, which were of considerable importance, and which might be taken at a later stage. There was the question to which Mrs. Fawcett alluded, of providing sceendary schools, and making full provision for earrying the blind or deaf or dumb up to the highest educational institutions of the country. They had examples at the Universities of very remarkable successes of those who were afflicted, and they ought to assist them in their degree as they assisted other persons. What they said in this matter was what they said with regard to evening continuation schoolsnamely, that if they stopped at a certain point and did not carry on their educational training, they might be wasting vast sums of public money. Anything that they could do in that department they would do, and they would bring to bear all the influences that they had at their command in the House of Commons with the assistance of all parties. If once they could agree at starting as to the general principles involved, he had no doubt whatever about their facilities in getting the Bill through, and if once the Bill passed through the House of Commons they might look with great assurance to its passing the Upper House.

The Duke of Westminster having thanked the Vice-President of the Council, the deputation withdrew.

Conclusion.

Much of the work which was undertaken and accomplished during the year, was with a view to the future requirements of the College as a great National Institution. The managers had long foreseen that the purchase of Windermero was a necessity. Dr. Armitage, during his last visit said, "If this is to be the permanent location of the College, it is absolutely essential te secure the grounds of Windermero." The time arrived when the purchase must be made, or we must allew the property, te pass into the hands of builders. Confidently relying on the support of their patrens and friends, the committee decided te purchase this property, which was so important for future development. The advantages, however, are not all prospective; it enabled us at once to make provision for thirty additional pupils in the College, also to arrange and furnish two houses for private pupils.

The four and one-half acres of new ground were so rough and uneven, that much earth had to be removed before we could make the necessary walks, and adapt it to the use of our pupils. Mr. H. J. Veitch, of Chelsea, kindly undertook to lay out the ground, plant the necessary shrubs and trees, and harmonise it with the College property. Mr. Voitch recommended that the entire work should be carried out at once, as it would be much more economical, and the result more satisfactory. The work was carried out at cost price, and much expense was saved by his careful and gratuitous superintendence.

Unfortunately the house and much of the ground proved to be in a very unsanitary condition. Many years ago the houses in Church Road were drained into badly arranged cesspools, located in the part of Windermere adjoining the College play-grounds: within thirty feet of the College walks there was found a cess-pool 14 ft. square, with an inlet of 6 in. and an outlet of 4 in. These bad arrangements helonged to a former time, and the present sanitary authorities were unaware of their existence.

The bad condition of the draius of Windormero led to a thorough sauitary inspection of all the College drainage, and it was found very defective.

The approach of cholera compelled immediate removal of defects. It was necessary to provide a new system of drainage. The work was costly, but it has been well and thoroughly carried out. The acquisition of this new property has not only greatly enhanced the market value of the College freehold, but it has also made it impossible for builders to cut off our approaches to the main streets.

The HALL BRAILLE TYPE WRITER, invented by Mr. Frank Hall, Jacksonville, Il., U.S.A.

The first type-writer was brought out by the late W. H. Churchman in 1845, and, since then, many other machines have been produced, but Mr. Hall bas crowned all these efforts by a stroke of gonins. His machine is simple, durable, and so easy to manipulate that noyone can learn to write in n fow minutes, and, with a little practice. attain great rapidity. The small size of the letter, the narrow width of the paper, the difficulty of interlining, and the width of the keyboard, will prevent the machine from becoming popular in this country. The keyboard, though beantifully arranged for writing with two hands, is not easily manipulated with one. This is an important desideratum when the blind are copying, as one hand must then be used for reading. With these changes, the Hail Braillo Typewritor should be adopted, not only by every Blind School, but by ev ry blind person who can afford it. The cost is $12.00.

COURSE OF STUDY.

SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

PREPARATORY SCHOOL,

The Preparatory School is conducted on the Kinder-Garten system. Fröbel's principle of solf-work and self-help is far more essential in the training of blind than of seeing children. Special care is given to the moral, mental, and physical training of the children, and, as a foundation for all their future work, orderly habits, good manners, and upright conduct are inculcated.

Besides Kinder-Garten work, the instruction includes Reading, Writing, Arithmetic, Modelling, Technical Training, and Object Lessons in the elements of various subjects.

The Gardner Scholarships, subject to certain conditions as to age, are open to all the young Blind of England and Wales. Intending candidates should apply, without delay, to Henry J. Wilson, Esq., Secretary of the Gardner Trust, 1, Poet's Corner, Westmiuster, that their cases may be considered when vacancies occur. Those who wish to prepare for the examination are recommended to communicate with the Principal. Candidates for the College should read and write Braille with facility and correctness, and be well-grounded in Arithmetic, English Grammar, and Geography; these subjects are essential, but credit will be given for practical knowledge in other subjects. In regard to requirements for young children for the Primary School, and applicants for the Technical School, it is impossible to fix hard and fast rules; the arrangements must be elastic.

APPENDIX C.

OLD PUPILS' GUILD.

Most blind persons, whether trained as Teachers, Organists, Musicians, Pianoforte Tuners, or for any other trade or occupation, require some assistance at the outset.

They need help in finding suitable employment; recommendations for establishing a connection; pecuniary assistance (sometimes) in providing outfits of books, tools, instruments, &c.; advice in difficulties; encouragement in trials; sympathy at all times; and if overtaken by reverses, judicious and timely help towards a fresh start.

From the very commencement this help bas been given, as far as possible, by the College authorities, and the success achieved by our old pupils would have been impossible without it. But owing to the increasing number of certificated pupils, organised effort has become necessary to meet these needs and the expense which they entail. These increasing requirements led to the establishment of a Guild for Old Pupils.

The objects of the Guild are:-

To assist, advise, and befriend Pupils after leaving the College, especially when first starting in their business or profession; to devise and carry into operation such methods as may be found most effective for this purpose, so that every Old Pupil of the College who, having completed his or her College course, and obtained a College Certificate, maintains good conduct and reputation, and is a diligent worker according to his or her ability, may rely on moral, material, and effective support, and timely assistance in every occasion of difficulty, so far as funds will allow.

The management of the Guild is deputed to a Special Committee, including the officers of the Executive Committee, the Principal of the College, and others, among whom are some of the former pupils of the College.

The Committee seek tho aid, as corresponding associates, of Ladies and Gentlemen in various parts of this country or abroad, who will interest themselves in the blind, especially in former pupils of the College, and who will undertake to establish and maintain, as far as may be, friendly communication with members of the Guild in their own neighbourhood, and to assist the Special Committee with information and otherwise, in furthering the objects of the Guild in regard to such members; to act as roferees for Members; to assist them in finding employment and obtaining customers; to give a patient hearing to their statements, and devise judicious ways of advancing their welfare.

A Register of the members is kept, containing their addresses and employment, with suitable particulars of their circumstances, capabilities, and needs, and also a register of members seeking employment, and of openings and employment available.

RULES AND TERMS FOR THE ADMISSION OF PUPILS.

- 1. The College is open to the young of either sex and of any rank, but only those will be received as pupils who show sufficient ability to render it probable that by instruction they can be rendered capable of self-support.
- 2. As without previous trial it would in many cases be difficult to determine whether an applicant for admission has sufficient capacity for the kind of education given at the College, candidates will first be received as probationers for a period of three months, or less. If, at the end of that period, they are found to possess adequate ability, they may become permanent pupils.
- 3. The annual charge for pupils * in the Preparatory School is £35 per annum; in the College under 13 years of age, £50 per annum; and over 13 years of age, £60 per annum.
- 4. The charge for private pupils in the Preparatory School is £50 per annum; in the College, from £80 to £100, according to circumstances.
- 5. The charges for resident pupils include board, lodging, washing, and medical attendance; but not clothing or travelling expenses. Payments in all cases must be made for each term in advance. All cheques and Post Office Orders, in payment for pupils, should be sent to the Principal at the College.
- 6. The school year will be divided into three terms; for which the payments are due October 1st, January 1st, and April 1st. The first and second terms include three months each, the third term four months.
- 7. Except in cases of severe illness, all pupils are expected to be in attendance at the College on the first day of each term.
- 8. Pupils will only be admitted at the beginning of one of the terms. If possible they should enter at the beginning of the Michaelmas term.

• The Gardner Trustees have granted a large number of Scholarships to aid the young blind of England and Wales whose friends cannot pay the entire cost (see Report). Several institutions for the blind are also heartily co-operating with us. In various large towns special Scholarship Committees have been formed, especially in Scotland.

- 9. As it is of the utmost importance to keep up home ties between pupils and their families, it is desirable that all pupils shall spend at least the summer vacation with their parents or friends.
- 10. All pupils must be provided with strong clothes, either new or in perfect repair, as in the following lists, and their parents or friends will be required to renew the clothing when deemed necessary by the Committee.
- 11. The use of tobacco in all forms is strictly forbidden. All pupils, without regard to age, during their connection with the College, must abstain from the use of tobacco either on or off the College premises. The use of beer, winc, or any drink containing alcohol, is only allowed when ordered by the medical authorities of the College.
- 12. In all cases the following form must be filled up by a duly qualified medical practitioner. The questions are not, however, put with a view to exclusion, but for information regarding the pupils.
  - (a) Is the applicant totally blind, or, if only partially so, has he sufficient sight to enable him to follow any profitable employment?
  - (b) What appears to have been the cause of blindness?
  - (c) Has the applicant had the small-pox? Has he been vaccinated, and is there satisfactory evidence that the infection was complete?
  - (d) Has he had the measles, whooping cough, or scarlet fever?
  - (e) Has he been subject to epileptic fits?
  - (f) Is he free from scrofula or cutaneous disease?

(Signed)

13. In cases in which the pupil is not entirely paid for by his or her friends, some reliable person must give a guarantee that the necessary clothing will be supplied; and that the pupil will be removed from the College during vacations; and, in case of death, that the funeral expenses will be paid.

N.B.—Applications and inquiries in regard to the admission of pupils should be addressed to the Principal, F. J. Campbell, Esq., LL.D., Royal Normal College and Academy of Music for the Blind, Upper Norwood, S.E. Persons can see the Principal on business on Tuesdays from 2 to 3 p.m. (the second Tuesday Also at the same hour on the first Thursday in each excepted). month; otherwise by appointment.

LIST OF CLOTHING.

FEMALE DEPARTMENT.

Lacing and tight fitting dresses are prohibited. Dresses and other clothing must give ample room across the chest. Dresses narrow across the chest invariably lead to bad positions. Parents are especially requested to attend to this requirement, as the health very much depends upon proper clothing. The skirts of the school dresses must be at least 23 inches from the ground, to allow freedom in walking.

1 Sunday dress.

2 Week-day dresses.

1 Gymnastic suit, which should be purchased at the College, and must be renewed when necessary. If the parents will furnish 10s. 6d. per annum, the pupil will be kept fully supplied with all the clothing required for the physical department.

1 White petticoat. 2 Coloured petticoats. 2 Flannel petticoats.

3 Undervests (flannel or morino, high-necked and longsleeved).

4 Chemises.

4 Bodices (supplied with buttons for supporting the skirts).

4 Pairs of drawers.

- 3 Nightgowns. 1 Flannel dressing gown.
- 12 Towels.

8 Pocket-handkerchiefs.

6 Aprons.

- 4 Pairs of stockings. 1 Pair of best boots.
- 2 Pairs of strong boots.

- l Pair of slippers or house boots.
- 2 Hats.
- 1 Sunday jacket.
- 1 Common ditto, or shawl. -
- 1 Waterproof.
- 2 Pairs of gloves. A sufficient quantity of collars and cuffs.
- 1 Comb and brusb.
- 1 Small toothed comb.
- 1 Nail brush.
- 1 Tooth brush.
- 2 Small bags for combs and brush.
- 2 Bags for soiled linen.

MALE DEPARTMENT.

- 1 Sunday suit (should be of dark material, black preferred).
- 2 Very strong week-day suits.

Coats and vests must be broad across the chest, to give the lungs full play.

- 5 Shirts.
- 3 Night shirts.
- 6 Collars.

The bands of shirts and collars are often too small: this is a fatal error, as it not only injures the health, but prevents all chance of progress in singing.

- 6 Pocket-handkerchiefs.
- 5 Pairs dark worsted stockings.
- 1 Warm coat or cloak.
- 1 Stiff black felt bat for Sunday.
- 2 College caps (furnished at the college at 1/6 each).
- 2 Pairs of gloves.
- 1 Pair of Sunday boots.
- 2 Pairs of very strong boots for week-day use (without hob-nails).

(Parents are requested to exercise special care in regard to the size of the boots. They are often too small.)

1 Pair of slippers.

Gymnastic shoes (black), jerseys (dark navy bluo, with 2 inch collar), cap and belt (furnished at the College at the lowest wholesale rates).

Comb and hair brush. Small toothed comb.

2 Small bags for comb and brush.

1 Tooth Brush.

1 Bag for soiled linen.

The rule in regard to the supply of clothing is imperative.

The gymnastic outfit is indispensable, and should be obtained at the College, as it is important to have all the suits alike. If the clothing and gymnastic outfit is not provided, it will be the duty of the Principal to suspend the pupil. If parents will furnish 10s. 6d. per annum, the pupil will be kept fully supplied with all the clothing required for the physical department.
